Highlights

We continue to strive to provide for our student's needs, all the while keeping a wary eye on whether we are making adequate progress on the ISAT tests for all subgroups.

We have been fortunate to have a 21st Century Learning Grant that has provided an extended-day kindergarten opportunity for identified learners. We have arranged our school days to provide extra time to certain groups who require more assistance primarily in math.

Textbook adoption has been a real challenge as we haven't updated secondary Language Arts books in 15 years. Making a whole-sale replacement with more current-interest books has proven financially staggering.

In Gooding, we feel we are growing in numbers, but need to be wary as rumblings abound that ISDB may be closing its doors. What will replace the services provided, and what populace might inhabit the campus? We are wary of starting a building movement until we have more direction.
